This page is designed to inform you about our use of cookies and to explain how you can manage them.

This page is designed to inform you about our use of cookies and to explain

How can you manage them?

Do you want more information about cookies and how we use them? It will be a pleasure explain it to him! Keep reading.

Note: This Cookie Policy does not address how we treat your personal data beyond our use of cookies. To find out more about how we treat your personal data, you can read our Data Protection Policy.

What are cookies?

Cookies are small text files that are sent to your browser or to the memory of your device, or accessed from them. A cookie usually contains the domain name

(Internet location) from which the cookie originated, the "lifetime" of the cookie (i.e., when it expires) and a randomly generated unique number or similar identifier. a cookie

It may also contain information about your device, such as user settings, browsing history and activities carried out when using our services.

Are there different types of cookies?

First-party and third-party cookies

There are first-party cookies and third-party cookies. First party cookies are placed on your device directly by us. For example, we use first party cookies to tailor our site website to your browser's language preferences and to better understand how you use our website. Third party cookies are placed on your device by our partners and Service providers. You can learn more about these partners and providers from services in the consent management tools of our website and in the application.

For more details on these tools, see "How can you control the cookies?" later.

Session and persistent cookies

There are session cookies and persistent cookies. Session cookies only last until you close the browser. We use session cookies for various reasons, including to better understand the use you make of our website during a single browsing session and to help you use our website more efficiently. Persistent cookies have longer duration and extend beyond the current session. These types of cookies can be used to help you quickly log in to our website again, for purposes analytical and for other reasons described below.

What about other tracking technologies, like web beacons and SDKs?

Web beacons (also called pixel tags or clear gifs), URLs of follow-up or software development kits (SDKs) are used for purposes similar to those of cookies. Web beacons are small graphic files that contain a unique identifier that allows us to recognize when someone has visited our service or have opened an email we have sent you. Tracking URLs are custom generated links that help us understand where the traffic is coming from of our web pages. SDKs are small pieces of code found in applications and that work like cookies and web beacons.

For simplicity, in this Cookie Policy we also refer to these technologies as "cookies".

What do we use cookies for?

Like other online service providers, we use cookies to provide, ensure and improve our services by, among others, the following measures: remembering your preferences, recognizing you when you visit our website, measuring the success of our advertising campaigns and personalizing and tailoring ads to your interests. To achieve these purposes, we may also link cookie information to other personal data what we have about you
